Mosi-oa-Tunya

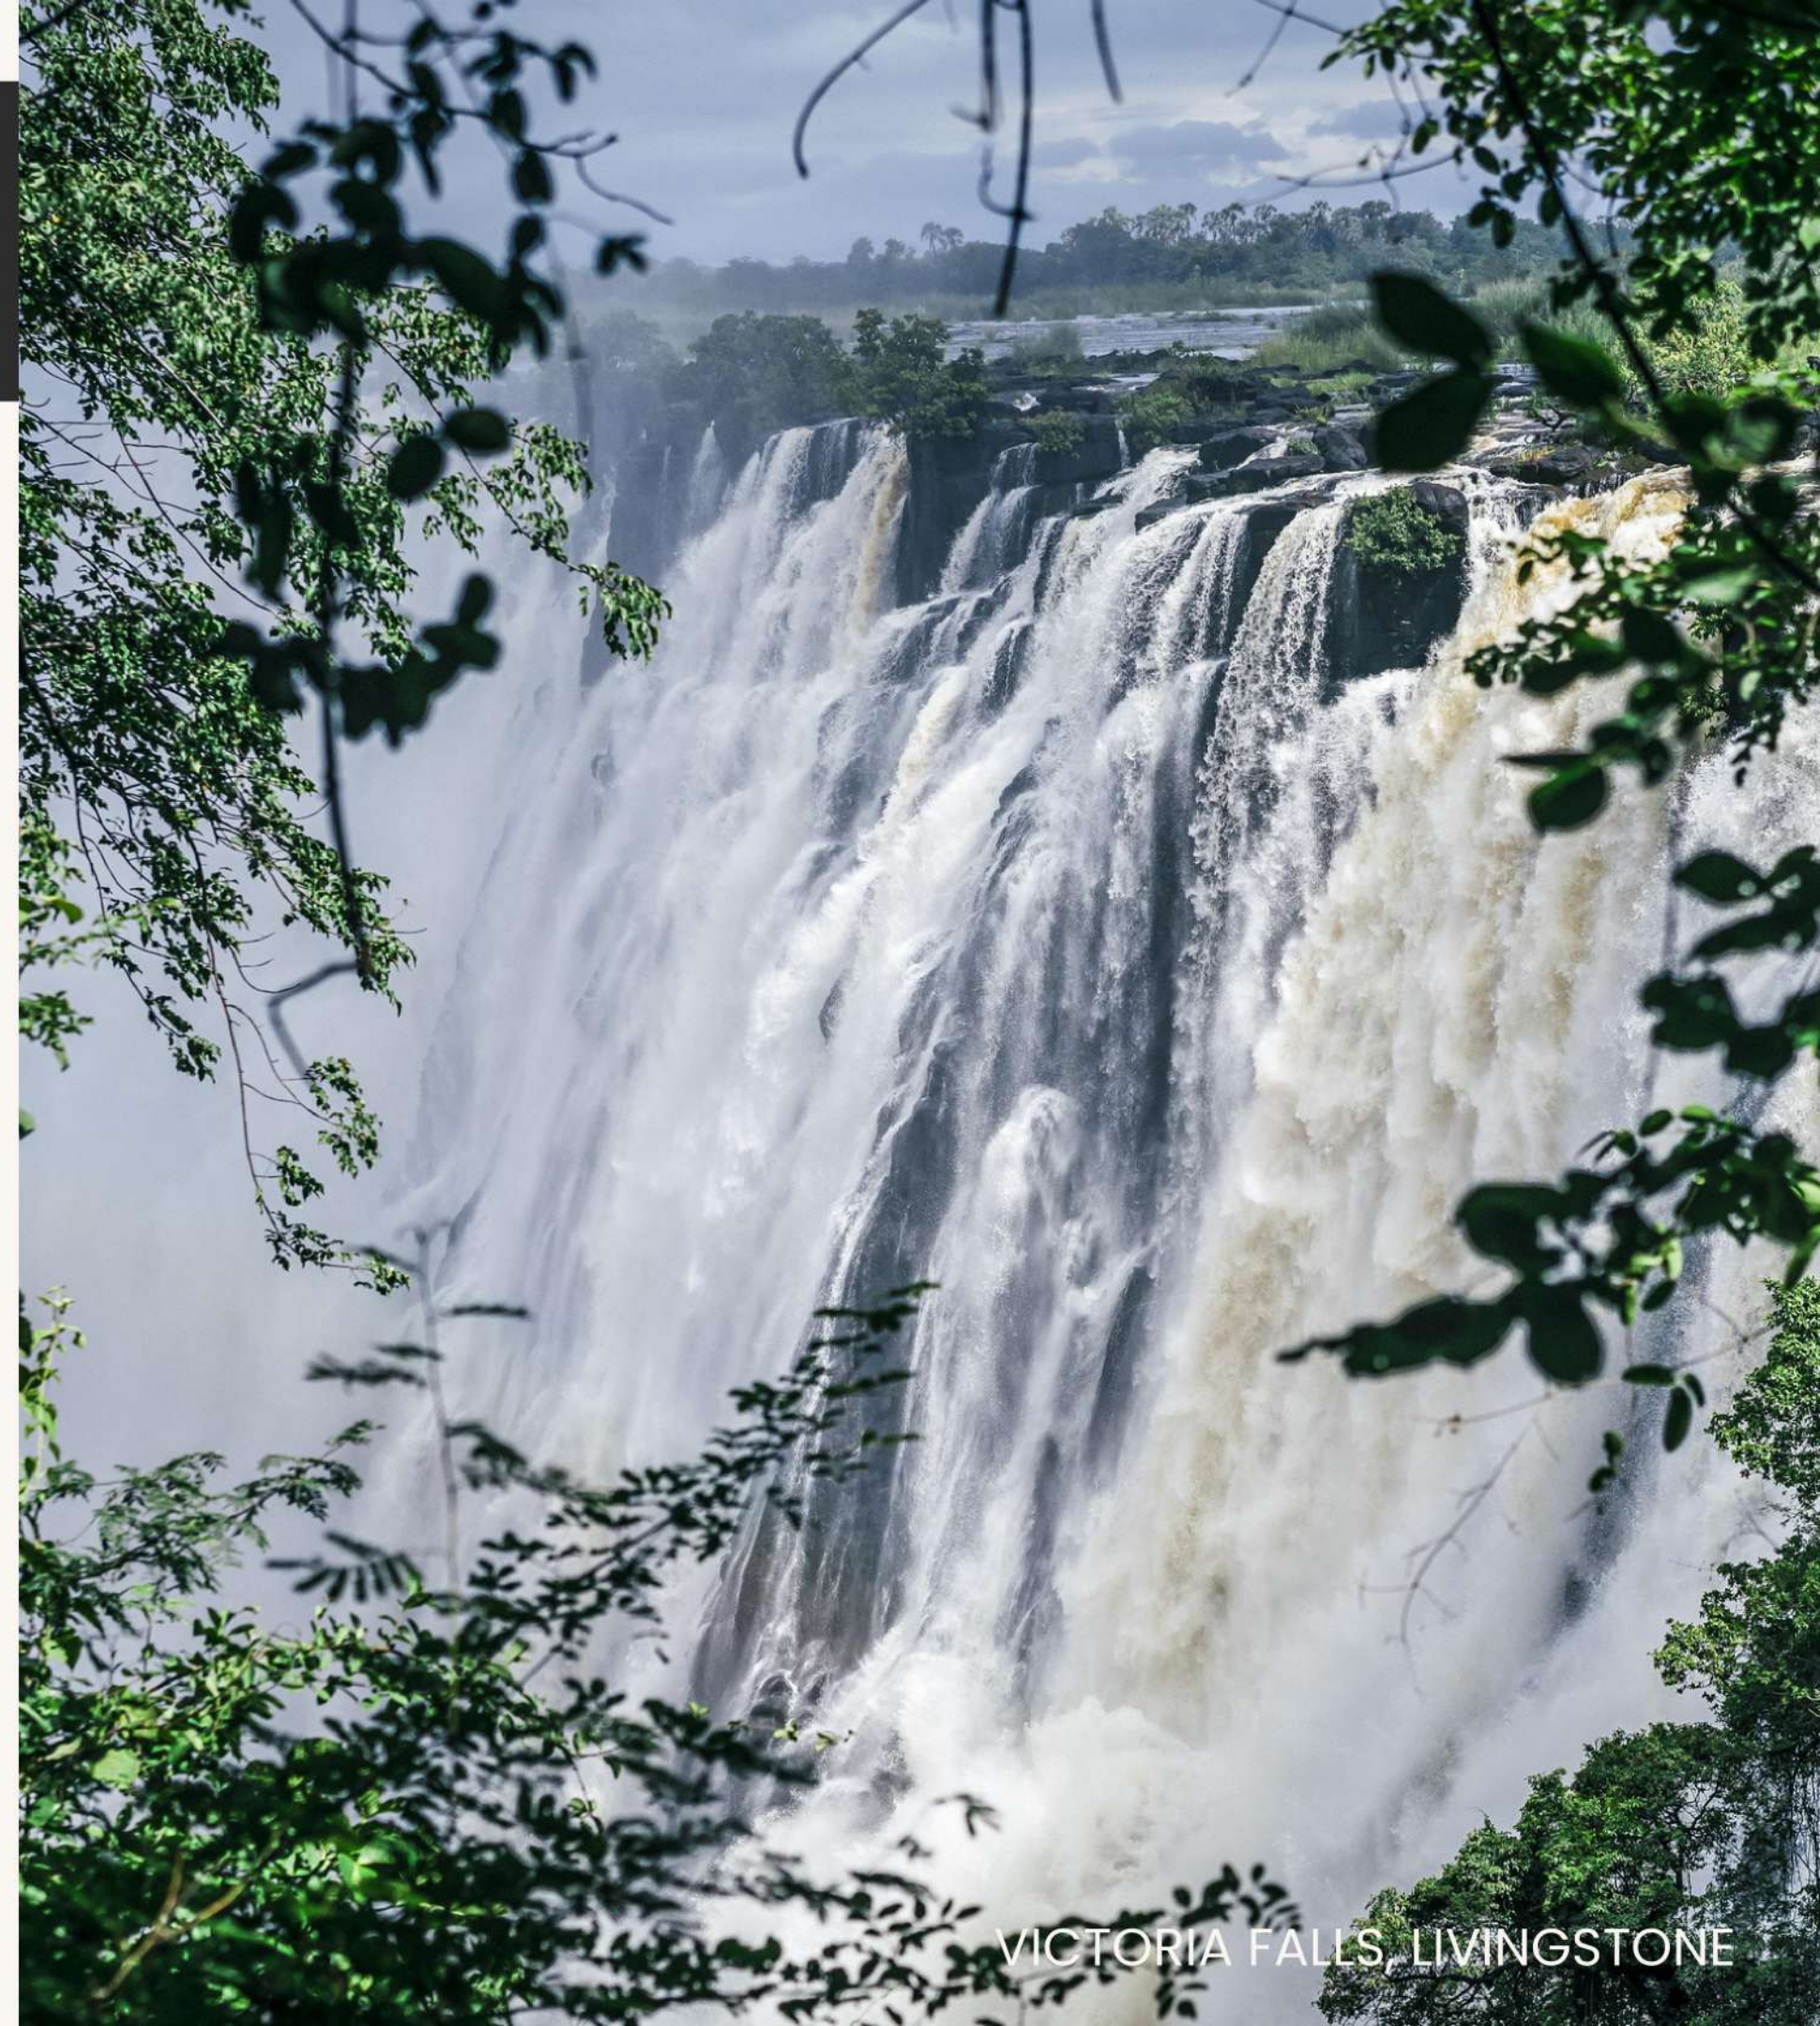

Plural noun

the local name for Victoria Falls

Word origin

from Lozi: 'the smoke that thunders'

Victoria Falls, one of the seven world wonders is on the border between Zimbabwe and Zambia, on the Zambezi River. Height: about 108 m (355 ft). Width: about 1400 m (4500 ft)

VICTORIA FALLS, LIVINGSTONE

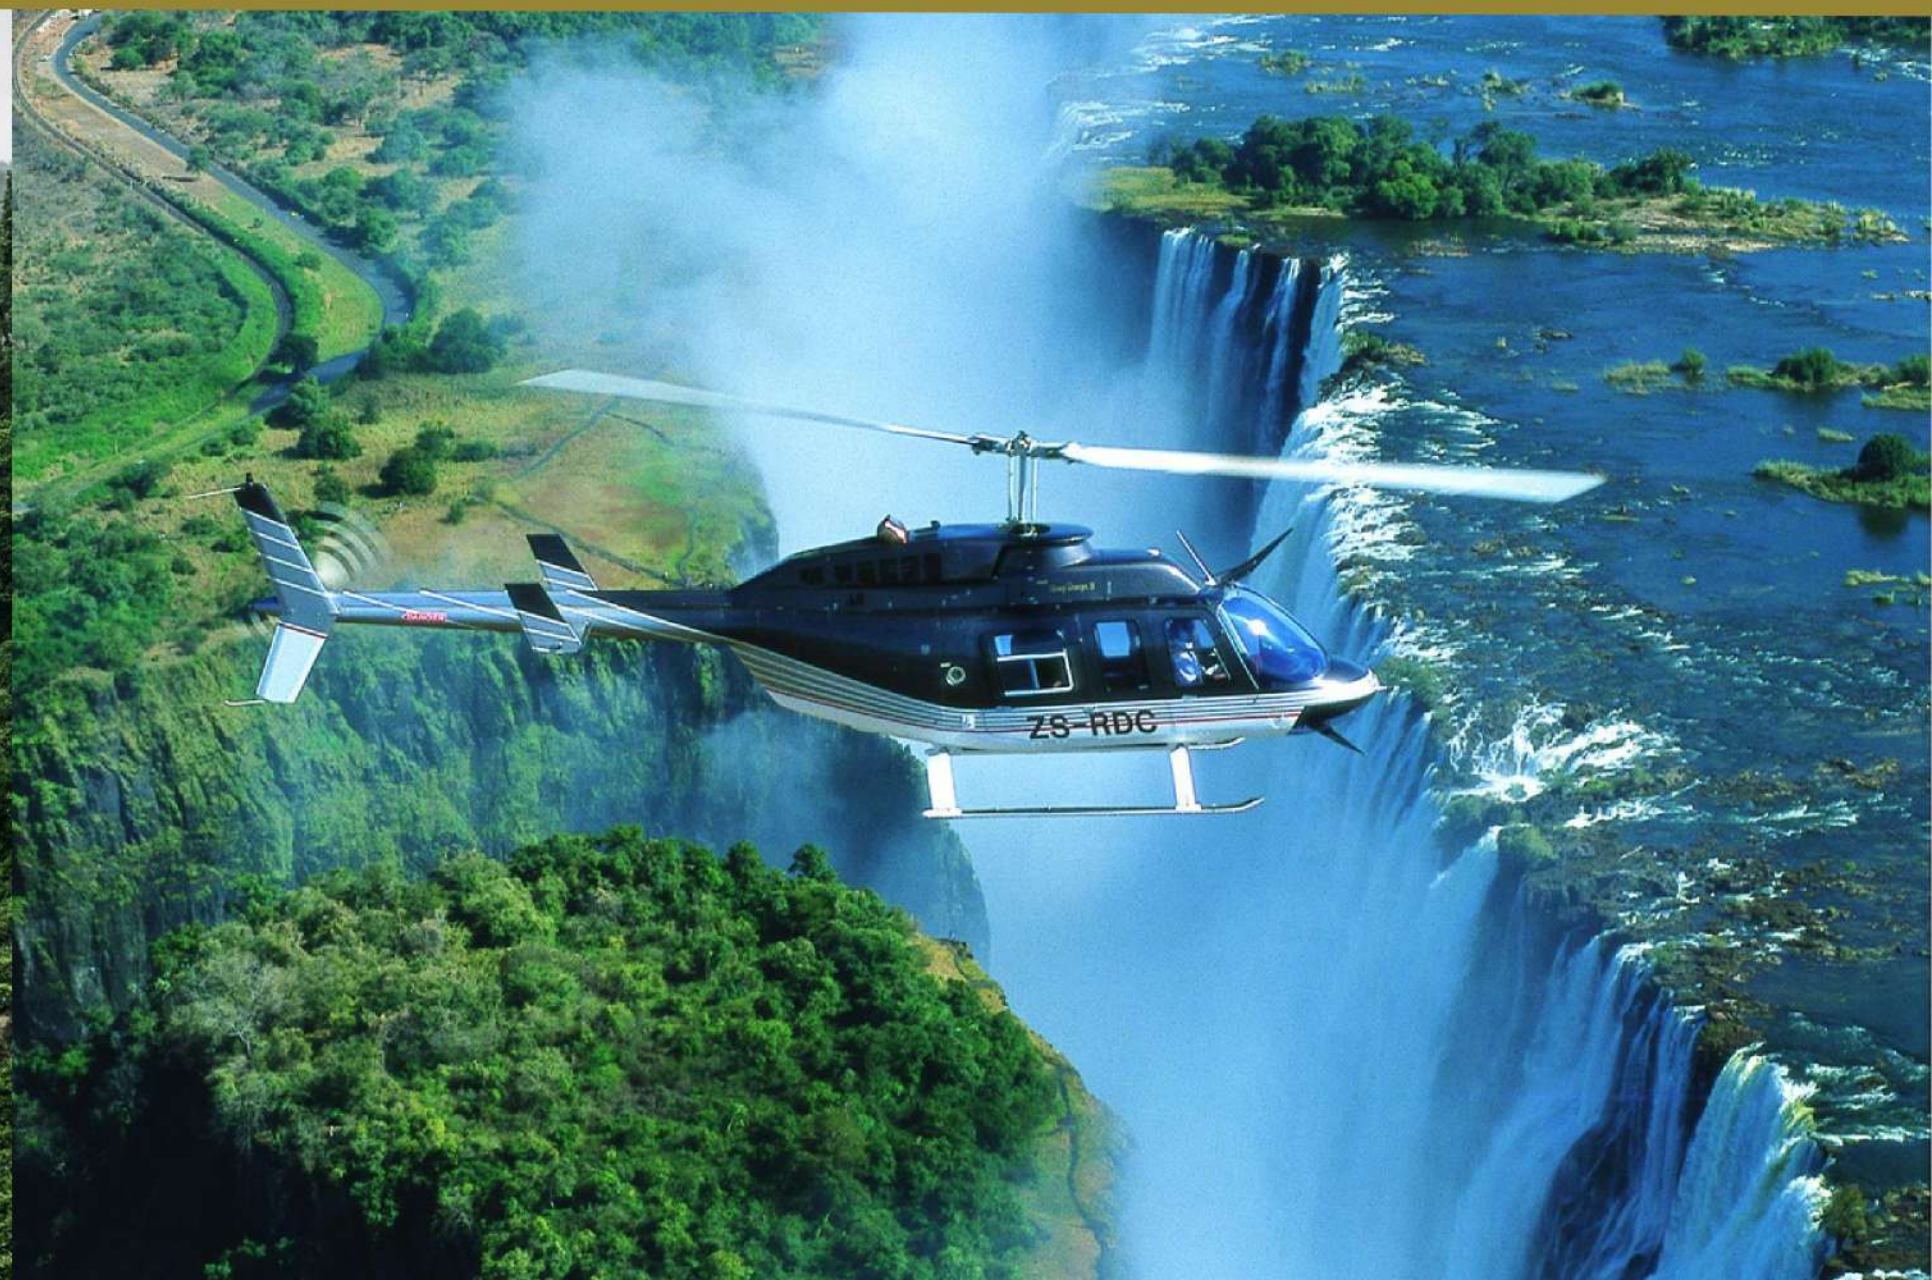

THE RIVER CLUB

This camp has been around since the mid 90's and is built on a raised part of the river bank some 17 kilometres upstream from the Falls and 30 minutes drive from the airport. The camp is well designed to take advantage of the views across a wide bend in the main river and the perspective from camp is wonderful.

The central area is delightfully colonial in style with old books, silverware and plenty of photographs to complete the illusion that one has stepped back in time. This feeling is further enhanced on meeting the owner manager Peter Jones, an ex British army officer with a passion for the history of the area.
